

Harvesting information from response forms. Site Specific

When a visitor leaves a message on a form located within your web site you will receive a message that looks something like shown below.

ONLINE FORM

Your visitor types in their information.

Are you interested in joining Soroptimist?

Join other successful professionals and make a difference!

We have provided this convenient form for you. Please take a moment to fill it out and we will respond as soon as possible

Thank you for visiting Soroptimist Camino Real Regional Web Site. We hope that the information on these pages were helpful. However should you have some questions, comments or concerns we would love to hear from you.

YOU RECEIVE THIS EMAIL

What you will see in the email sent to you!

Name: test visitors Name

email: test@damalakandassociates.com

City: Visitors city

Submit: Once pushed the visitor will Be forwarded to the site thank you page.

Message box allows 30 lines of text.
Yada yada yada yada yada
FORM ON 06-09-06 @ 10:26

```
Name: test visitor Name
email: test@damalakandassociates.com
city: visitor city
Coleman0:
Message box: yada yada yada yada yada
B3: Submit
```

Depending on the email program and layout you are using your email should look something like this.

Your next step is to harvest this information using the "copy and Paste" feature of your email program.

Assuming that you have a message template, highlight the name of the sender and the message and paste it onto your form or data base file.